

Dear colleagues, ladies and gentlemen, these are the last actual informations on the issue of “Parental Alienation” as I retire from this professional field for health reasons. If, in the future, you are interested to get more Information of the development of “Parental Alienation Scenarios” - please click the web side website <https://ckm.vumc.org/pasg/>

As a specialist in psychiatry, neurology, psychosomatic medicine and psychotherapy from Europe/Germany, I have for many years been concerned with the subject of parental alienation, both in theory and in practice (see also my publications on www.pas-konferenz.de).

Given the “difficult situation” of cases of parental alienation (particularly in German-speaking countries), may I refer you, for the sake of simplicity, to my article “Parental alienation (syndrome) – A serious form of psychological child abuse”, recently published in the Austrian peer-reviewed journal “Neuropsychiatrie” (2018) 32 (3): 133 – 148. <https://doi.org/10.1007/s40211-018-0267-0>. English translation: in: Mental Health Fam Med (2018) 14: 725 - 739, <http://mhfmjournal.com/pdf/MHFM-117.pdf> (double blinded peer-reviewed)

Another (peer-reviewed) article written in English is a review of the well-known “Parental Alienation – Handbook for Mental Health and Legal Professionals”, C. C. Thomas Publ., Springfield, IL., USA, 2013, by D. Lorandos, W. Bernet & S. R. Sauber, which I would like to recommend to you. (in: EC PAEDIATRICALS (2018) 7.8: 820 - 822. (<https://www.ecronicon.com/ecpe/pdf/ECPE-07-00320.pdf>). This article was updated and published in German language in Neuropsychiatrie (2019), 33 (1): A13 - A14 and in English language in Journal of Family Medicine and Disease Prevention (2019) 5 (6): 115 - 117, <https://www.clinmedjournals.org/articles/jfmdp/journal-of-family-medicine-and-disease-prevention-jfmdp-5-115.php?jid=jfmdp>.

A special case of severe “Parental Alienation” and its consequences was published in International Journal for Case Reports (2019), Vol. 3, No. 1: 4, <http://www.imedpub.com/articles/international-classification-of-diseasesparental-alienation.pdf>

Two other case report articles were published in Oct. and Nov. 2020 in Journal of Case Reports & Imaging 4:026 Parental Alienation - A worldwide Health Problem <https://www.henrypublishinggroups.com/parental-alienation-a-worldwide-health-problem/>, and in Annals of Case Reports 14:566 Parental Alienation: A Serious Form of Child Psychological Abuse - A Worldwide Health Problem https://www.gavinpublishers.com/assets/articles\_pdf/1606556800article\_pdf1548784057.pdf

Lorandos, D. and Bernet, W. (Eds.) (2020). Parental Alienation - Science & Law, Springfield, IL., C. C. Thomas Publ. In this book the authors address - among others - the seriously distorted and biased misinformation on Parental Alienation theory and practice in considerable detail. The authors tested a set of findings reported by Meier et al. (2019):

They say: "These findings, along with several others, raise concerns that the methodological, analytical, and statistical problems we detail about Meier's report that make her conclusions untrustworthy. Discussion focuses on the importance of using open science practices for transparent and rigorous empirical testing of hypotheses and the dangers of misusing scientific findings to mislead influential professionals who affect the well-being of millions of families." Another important film about Parental Alienation (Syndrome) from Alexander Dierbach (in German language) with the title "Weil Du mir gehörst" ["Because you are mine"] was shown at the film festival in Munich (27th June - 6th July 2019; <https://www.filmfest-muenchen.de/de/programm/filme/film/?id=6089>) and at the film festival in Ludwigshafen on September 5, 6 and 7th 2019. It shows the whole tragedy of Parental Alienation in thousands of similar family cases in Germany and millions worldwide (Harman et al. 2018). The film can be seen with English subtitles at <https://www.bitchute.com/video/R1IO4B9BrCUM>

The term "parental alienation" does not yet feature as such in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual (DSM-5) of the American Psychiatric Association (APA). But the internationally used "International Classification of Diseases" (ICD-11) of the World Health Organisation (WHO) referred to "parental alienation" since 18 June 2018. (Code QE 52.0, under caregiver-child relation problem as index factor. This was confirmed by the seventy-second World Health Assembly on 25th May 2019 (<https://icd.who.int/dev11/l-m/en#/http://id.who.int/icd/entity/547677013>). This was absolutely necessary in order to stop the meanwhile endemic and worldwide problem of Parental Alienation as a form of "psychological child abuse (ICD-11, Code T82.2 and DSM-5, Code V995.51)". (Kruk, 2018; Harman et al., 2018). The long discussion about PA seemed to be ended with that decision. But then, in Sept. 2019, a dubious and biased document was posted on the ICD-11 (orange version) website by a group of "critics of the PA-concept" from the fields "Child abuse", "Domestic violence" and with a feminist focus called "Collective Memo of Concern to World Health Organization", which criticized that very decision. Thus, the Medical and Scientific Advisory Committee (MSAC) secretariat removed "Parental Alienation" and "Parental Estrangement" on 25th Febr. 2020 without giving a convincing and detailed explanation of the investigation or research that supported such a belated decision. Transparency is here at issue. That means: The debate goes on.

Parental Alienation is a custody issue but also a child protection issue. The supervisory bodies of the child welfare office and the family court should in these cases be required to act accordingly (Harman et al., 2018).

A Study published in 2014 by the American Psychological Association (Joseph Spinazzola et al., 2014) “Unseen wounds: The Contribution of Psychological Maltreatment to Child and Adolescent Mental Health and Risk Outcomes” shows that children who are emotionally abused face similar and sometimes worse mental health problems as children who are physically or sexually abused, yet psychological abuse is rarely addressed in prevention or treating problems for victims. (<https://www.apa.org/education/ce/1360375> )

From Sept. 12 - 14, 2019 the Third International conference of the Parental Alienation Study Group, took place in Philadelphia, PN., USA (see: www.pasg2019.com; www.pasg.info). During this conference it was possible to hear from the leaders in the field how to understand, prevent and manage Parental Alienation.

Dr. Miller, a Harvard trained specialist in the field of Parental Alienation, explains in a 5-minutes-video <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5fgRjH26Jho>, the heavy mistakes professionals dealing with severe Parental Alienation cases can make.

The website <https://ckm.vumc.org/pasg/> today lists around 1,300 publications of scientific relevance from about 55 countries worldwide on the subjects parental alienation, parental alienation syndrome and related subjects.

International developments

Parental Alienation is an international phenomenon, which empirical studies have shown to exist in various countries (Dum, 2013 a, in: Lorandos, Bernet & Sauber, 2013, ibd. p. 425 - 467; Lorandos & Bernet, 2020), and which is reflected in more than 1500 court rulings, for instance, in the United States and Canada (Bernet, 2010), (Lorandos, 2013, ibd.), in the Brazilian law on Parental Alienation/Law 12318 of 2010 (Brockhausen, 2013, ibd.), in the laws of some other South American countries (Dum, 2013 a, ibd., p. 425 - 467) and in rulings by the Strasbourg-based European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) for instance, Sommerfeld v. Germany (2003); Koudelka and Zavrel v. Czech Republic (2006 and 2007); Plasse-Bauer v. France (2006); Minecheva v. Bulgaria (2010); Bordeiana v. Moldova (2011) and others, (Dum, 2013 b, ibd., p. 439 - 444); and recently: K. B. and others v. Croatia (2017) (<https://strasbourgobservers.com/2017/04/25/k-b-and-others-v-croatia-the-courts-first-steps-to-tackle-parental-alienation/>); Aneva and others v. Bulgaria (2017): <http://hudoc.echr.coe.int/eng?i=001-176982>; Case of R. I. and others v. Romania (2018) <http://hudoc.echr.coe.int/eng?i=001-187931> and Case of Pisciă v. Moldavia (2019): <http://hudoc.echr.coe.int/eng?i=001-197214>

Concerning the case of Pisciă v. Moldavia (2019) (see above) Sünderhauf, H. & Widrig, M., have written an article “EGMR anerkennt ‘Parental Alienation’ vom 29. Oktober 2019” [“EHCR acknowledges ‘Parental Alienation’ from 29th october 2019”] <https://doi.org/10.21257/sg.160>. This article appeared in English language in the book “The Routledge International Handbook of Shared Parenting and Best Interest of the Child” (eds., by de Torres Perea, J. M., Kruk, E. & Ortiz-Tallo, M.) Routledge, New York, available after may 27th, 2021.

In France by the national court of appeal Cour de Cassation (No. 660 of 26th june 2013; 12-14.392) https://www.courdecassation.fr/jurisprudence\_2/premiere\_chambre\_civile\_568/660\_26\_26933.html), and in rulings by the higher regional courts of several European countries, for instance: Croatia, England, France, Germany, Italy, Romania, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland and others (Bernet, 2010).

There are – internationally and especially in German speaking countries – still not enough therapists who are familiar with the subject “Parental Alienation” and have completed suitable (further) training.

In view of the recently published international scientific findings on Parental Alienation (such f. i. by Warshak, 2015 a, b, 2018, 2019, 2020; Matic & Mirica, 2016; Templer, Matthewson, Haines & Cox, 2017; Kruk, 2018; Harman, Kruk & Hines, 2018; Lorandos & Bernet, 2020; Harmann & Lorandos, 2020; and others). This will hopefully change soon.

In the United States, Canada, Australia, South Africa, England, Israel, Croatia, Spain, and in few instances in Germany programs of intervention are used and successfully evaluated in cases of parental alienation (see also my article “Parental alienation (syndrome) – A serious form of psychological child abuse” in Neuropsychiatrie, 2018, 32 (3): 133 – 148). <https://doi.org/10.1007/s40211-018-0267-0> (German language) and in Mental Health Fam. Med. (2018) 14: 725 - 739; <http://mhfmjournal.com/pdf/MHFM-117.pdf> (English language)
